HONGKONG, JUNE 18TH, 1870.

THE point upon which the whole question of the usefulness of the licensing system as a means of "regulating" the vice must depend is whether it succeeds in entirely suppressing all but the licensed houses. Setting aside all other arguments with regard to the desirability or otherwise of the system, it is perfectly clear that it fails in every result that was expected from it, if notwithstanding the licensing of houses, there continue to be unlicensed gambling hells in existence, in any considerable number. Although dim allusions have from time to time been made to the fact, that there were one or two such establishments in the Colony, probably few have any conception of the extent to which this is the case. A definite idea on the subject may, however, be gained from the act that, within six months, no less than nine such houses have been broken. It is further to be noticed that this was done through the exertions of Inspectors GRIMES and GRAY, and not by the assistance of the Gambling Farmers, who have been represented as being so indefatigable in their exertions in putting down illegal gambling haunts. How far these exertions have been successful may be judged from the fact, which is stated on good authority, that they have not as yet succeeded in actually breaking up a single den; but whenever illegal houses have been put down, it has been to the Police Inspectors, not the Gambling Farmers, that the credit was due. We beg pardon. It just occurs to us that there are some few cases in which the Farmers have shown astounding activity. Every now and then some miserable coolies are, through their exertions, brought up for gambling in the streets. The intense energy with which they hunt down these mild infringers of the law, is very edifying, when viewed in connection with their unaccountable ignorance of the very much more extensive infringements which, in the form of unlicensed hells, are going on in all directions. It is evident that though the barn door has a large hole for the big fowl to go out of, it has no little holes to admit of the exit of the extremely diminutive chickens that appear from time to time before Mr. MAY. If, however, all the much vaunted assistance from the licensees results only in a vigorous prosecution of peripatetic fantangan, it be of very little service in preserving that high state of morality and public security which is supposed to result from people doing wrong after having duly purchased an indulgence from the Government. The haunts of criminals which were supposed to have vanished into thin air almost at the moment when the Clerk of the Council read the Gambling Ordinance for the second time, still continue to exist in their full glory; and are more screened than ever from public gaze and the liability of detection; so that the second great plea in favour in the system now appears, from undoubted facts, to be as delusive as the first, namely that it tended to prevent larceny, was shown to be a few days ago. It has now become clear that the vaunted licensing system altogether fails in its two great essentials. It does not in any way discourage theft for the purposes of gambling; and, so far from its doing away with haunts for dangerous characters, it leaves the large loophole of unlicensed houses still unclosed, whereby these men have as great opportunities of spreading contamination as if no steps whatever were taken in the matter.

It is interesting to note that the remarks which was made by Father RAIMONDI in his valuable report upon Saint Saviours' School, with reference to the capabilities of Chinese to acquire Western science and arts, have received a valuable confirmation in so far as they refer to the question of constructing and managing gun-boats. It will be recollected that Father RAIMONDI expressed his opinion that the Chinese would never be capable of taking the command of steamers, or of acting without foreign assistance as engineers. This opinion was controverted in some directions, but at all events is considered so far correct by those best capable of judging, that the authorities at the Foochow Arsenal have expressed their concurrence in the view set forth, and have requested Father RAIMONDI to furnish them with copies of his Report for transmission to the French Government. As may be naturally supposed, the Directors of the Foochow Arsenal are interested in the success of their pupils, and it would be a subject of congratulation to them if they could qualify them to take the command of steamers on the high sea, and become sufficiently acquainted with engineering matters to manage the engines without assistance. But, notwithstanding this, they are constrained to admit the truth of the remarks made by Father RAIMONDI, and have no hope that it will at any time be possible for them to take the command of steamers, except on the Coast or in the Rivers of China. No better practical illustration of the bearing of this question could be afforded, than the fact that at the present time there is in Hongkong a Mandarin, who has been sent down from the Arsenal at Foochow to obtain the services of two Europeans, Frenchmen if possible, the one to take the command, and the other to act as Engineer, on a steamer which has been built at the Arsenal, and which is shortly coming down to this port. The experience of the Chinese with regard to these matters, which now extends over many years, goes to show that they can work well under the direction of Europeans, but are incapable of doing so alone. This fact is so well-known to those who have had the conduct of local engineering enterprises in China, that the idea of leaving the management of anything of the kind in the hands of Chinese has never been acted upon; and it can scarcely be controverted that, even if it is possible that in the course of a large number of years, they might be able to conduct such works independently, it is safe for practical purposes to state that they are unable to do so, as the period at which so great a change may be supposed capable of being brought about must be at all events most distant, if, indeed, it can be hoped that it will be attained at all.

It is understood that the statement that Mr. RICE is about to take the Superintendence of the Water Police, is somewhat premature. The plan was, it is said, suggested, but as yet nothing has been decided with regard to it.

It is reported that on the 8th April, two European gentlemen passed through Man yan fu, a large city in the Honan Province, and that the Catholic Missionaries, who reside some three miles from that city, sent to invite them to come and stay with them; but before the messenger reached them, they had already left.

The Hioga News states that a report has been communicated to it to the effect that the terrible quake of which the shock was recently felt, and whose real force was spent near the Lake of Aconi, caused the death of 500 persons. It adds that, although this fearful news has not been confirmed, there is every reason to believe in its authenticity.

The P. & O. Company have this day made a reduction in the rates of passage money, the first-class fare from Hongkong being reduced from £120 to £108, and the second class from £70 to £59, and from other places in proportion. It is to be hoped that with this step, they will combine some improvement in the second class accommodation, which requires to be put on a better footing to compete with the first class in the private steamers.

Private advices inform us of the arrival in France, about 22nd of last February, of Mons. Outrebon de Montblanc, Charge d'Affaires for Japan at the Courts of France and Belgium. It is stated that M. de Montblanc should have presented the letters which accredited him in his capacity to the Emperor of the French and the King of the Belgians, but that up to the 6th April, he had not yet been recognised by the cabinets either of Brussels or Paris.—Echo du Japon.

Intelligence has been received from a reliable source to the effect that the Mahomedan Rebels, who were two years ago, driven out of the province of Kwanh, have come back in large numbers to that province and Shensi; and it is feared that they may also enter Honan. From this it appears that the Mahomedans have not only entered the province of Shensi, but have assumed it from West to East. The Imperial troops are making great efforts to stay the march of the Rebellion, and the Viceroy of Hupeh has been ordered to proceed with a large body of troops to meet the insurgents, whose numbers have been largely increased by the Mahomedans already in the Shensi province, who join up at their approach.

The Supreme Court had much better sit with closed doors, though perhaps, that would scarcely answer even in Hongkong, if Lord GRANVILLE chanced to hear of it. The next best idea is to sit on days, when the public is least likely to have leisure for being present; say, the day before the mail goes. The representatives of the Press, too, are tolerably sure to be engaged on that day, so that it is one admirably suited for the meetings of Supreme Court Civil cases, which have of course no possible interest for the public, and which, more especially, the public are not required to know anything at all about. It is gratifying to see this plan being inaugurated. It has been adopted with partial success on two mail days quite recently, and a third experiment is to be tried next Wednesday; and in Admiralty having been postponed yesterday, after the formal process of opening the Court on a Supreme Court day. It seems that the rules of the Court are rational, but that, while the Court is formally rational in abiding by the letter of its rules, it is informally irrational in evading the spirit of the same. But in all seriousness, did it occur to the authorities at the Court when postponing the above named cases, that they were flouting the basest of all base days in Hongkong.

POLICE INTELLIGENCE.

BEFORE C. MAY, AND J. RUSSELL, ESQS.
June 17th.

ASSAULTING AND WOUNDING.

SIN ASH, a rice-pounder in the Wing Tai Ling shop on the Praya, was sentenced to one month's imprisonment, for an assault upon CHAI, another rice-pounder in the same shop. They had been wrangling before supper time, and also during that meal, and after it was concluded complainant stated that defendant had stabbed him with a packing needle, and also wounded him on his back. The defence set up was of the tu quoque character, defendant insisting that he was the original complainant, but by some misapprehension on the part of the constable, P.C. No. 99, he was made to change place with complainant, who was the original defendant.

PICKPOCKET.

Ping Apea, the master of a passage boat plying between Sheklung and Hongkong, charged Lee Ahum with picking his pocket. While he stood watching the performance of a juggler in the Queen's Road West, and the compradore of the Victoria Gaol stated that being the man put his hand into complainant's purse, he warned him so effectually, that complainant managed to seize prisoner's hand before he could withdraw it, and when thus caught in the act, the prisoner offered him a packet of silver worth about 17 cents, as an inducement to let him go. Prisoner, who was not known in gaol, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment with hard labour, and ordered to find two securities in $25 each to answer any charge for six months.

SELLING LIQUOR IN AN UNLICENSED HOUSE.

Andrews, keeper of a coffee shop in Wellington Street, upon the information of Acting Sergeant Batten, was convicted of having on the 15th instant unlawfully retailed spirituous and fermented liquor in quantity less than two gallons at one time, in an unlicensed house, contrary to the provisions of the Ordinance in such case made and provided, and fined $25, in default one month's imprisonment. Inspector Grey searched the house of defendant on the 16th instant, and found one bottle of gin and two bottles of beer; there were about 100 empty bottles and nine empty liquor cases also in the cook-house. The bottle of gin and two bottles of beer were declared to be forfeited.

BRUTAL ASSAULT.

Upon the information of the police constable No. 50, Archibald M. Symon, Joseph Dias, a seaman of the U.S.S. Delaware, was brought up on a warrant, charged with having on the 14th instant unlawfully and maliciously inflicted certain severe bodily injures on the person of the complainant, while he was in the execution of his duty, by biting through his left ear, and striking and inflicting a deep wound on his head with his staff, which he had wrested from him. Police constable No. 50 had picked up the defendant as one of a number of "strong fellows" for the apprehension of whom $10 each had been offered; having found him at the Murray Barracks, he put him into a pull-away boat and took him off to his vessel, and when the boat arrived at the gangway of the frigate, the man who had been chatting with the constable in a mild and friendly manner, rose, as if about to mount the sides, but suddenly turned upon the constable, and bit him on the left ear, and then taking up the constable's staff, which was lying on the seat, he struck him a heavy blow with it on the right side of the head, inflicting a deep wound, which bled profusely. The senior magistrate having been apprized by letter from the United States Consul, that it was Admiral Rowan's wish to take all the company of the Delaware home with him, his Worship, after giving the defendant (who is a Portuguese) a brief lecture for his fierce brutality, and commenting upon the excellent character the Delaware had won upon the station, fined him $50, in default, three months' imprisonment.

DISCHARGING STEAMERS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE "DAILY PRESS."

SIR,—The custom which now prevails here, of discharging and storing steamers' cargoes by the agents of such vessels, may be very convenient to the parties interested in a quick despatch of the ship, but certainly it often is very annoying to the consignees of the cargo, inasmuch as frequently the delivery of the goods is considerably delayed by this process.

It has happened to my knowledge that the cargoes of three different steamers, arrived from England within a short time of each other, have been stowed in a godown together, or rather one on the other, so that it was not until a long time after re-shipment of the first arrived, that certain parts of her cargo could be got at. It must be admitted that the agents of such steamers generally are very obliging, if applied to in reference to the matter, but nevertheless the system amounts to something like a nuisance, and at present, when so many steamers are arriving via the Suez Canal, it might be wished that something were done to make the system, if it must be retained, work more satisfactorily, so as to suit the interests of both sides.

I am, Sir, yours truly,
A. B.

Hongkong, 17th June, 1870.

POLITICAL STATE OF JAPAN.

(Translated from the "Echo du Japon" of June 6.)

In regard to general politics, the situation of Japan has been, during the past fortnight, the same as during that which preceded, that is to say, the same tranquility continues to exist. No rumour of war has reached our ears, although we are assured that secret armaments continue to be made. For ourselves, who can see nothing at this moment calculated to cause a rising, we are not disposed to place any faith in the rumours circulated by those who have imposed upon themselves the mission of alarming the community. On the contrary, we think that the true power, that of the Mikado, tends every day to become more consolidated. The review which recently took place before the Mikado must have inspired him with great confidence in the troops, who are entirely at his disposal, and we are persuaded that he will not stop spending military instruction after the European fashion, among the army which he is engaged in forming. In addition, colleges and schools of every kind are being formed, in which the services of Europeans who are willing to devote themselves to the hard task of instructing the natives, are called into requisition. All these innovations afford grounds for believing that the old national errors will be succeeded by ideas more in conformity with the times in which we live. People have entered amicably into the question of the Montblanc affair, and it is stated that M. de Montblanc should have presented the letters which accredited him in his capacity to the Emperor of the French and the King of the Belgians, but that up to the 6th April, he had not yet been recognised by the cabinets either of Brussels or Paris.—Echo du Japon.

SINGAPORE.

The Straits Times, of June 3rd, has the following:—

The financial condition of the Colony is prosperous notwithstanding the heavy expenditures which have taken place, and if this state of affairs continues, it would, we think, be advisable for Government to study retrenchment a little, in order that some of the taxes might be reduced. At the meeting of the Council on the 20th ult., the Indian Penal Code, altered to suit local requirements, passed its third reading and became law—to come into operation on a day to be appointed by the Governor. This is, we believe, the only measure of importance that has yet received sanction. The consolidation and amendment of the various Excise Ordinances is now occupying attention; when this is disposed of, it is probable that other matters of more general interest will be taken in hand, several having already been placed on the list for consideration.

The day before the departure of the last mail, two Inspectors of Police succeeded in apprehending three convicts, sentenced to imprisonment for life for murder, in the act of manufacturing counterfeit dollars. The house where they were at work was well stocked with material for the spurious metal—was even found in the jail, in their boxes,—showing that they were systematically carrying on their nefarious traffic. It is supposed a large number of counterfeit dollars have been put in circulation by these men, being already undergoing imprisonment for life, no punishment can be inflicted upon them. This is only one of a number of cases where convicts have been guilty of serious crimes, and these facts should lead Government to inquire into the working of its penal establishments, with a view to exercise a closer surveillance over the men it is supposed to keep in custody, and for whose good behaviour it is morally responsible, if it allows them to go out without an officer in charge.

THE WINNIPEG EXECUTION.

Mr. Mair, a half-breed, who was a prisoner with Scott at Fort Garry, has arrived here, and gives our reporter the following particulars of the cessation of Scott:—When we found that there was no hope from without, said Mr. Mair, we set about planning our escape. My cell was occupied by poor Scott, Allan, Miller, Holland, and myself. We removed a bar, and had it so arranged that the guard could not observe it during the day time. On the 4th of January, M'Arthur and Allan got off the window and I followed along with the rest. I lost my cap and walked bareheaded to Dreiver, and there I got a sled and horse and made my way to Portage Laprarie. I passed Rice and his party on White Horse Plains, about daylight the next morning, but although one of them called out "halt," I paid no attention, but drove on and escaped. The rest of the party were captured the next night at a house where they had camped, being tired and fagged out. They have been at the Forks, which took place at Yokohama, one of the ancles of the Mikado, a personage also held almost sacred, was present, during the whole time and is in the tent in the midst of common mortals, and indulged in the delights of one or more glasses of champagne. It may be stated incidentally that this product of our country forms a powerful auxiliary to Europeans with the Japanese, and will contribute not a little to develop intimate relations between the one and the other.

CRIME IN YOKOHAMA.

(Ibid.)

Since our last, there has been a succession of robberies and other crimes. In this, there is nothing astonishing, if the amount of mercy with which malefactors are treated in certain consulates in this city be taken into consideration. Perhaps, before long, they will beg the "loafers," pardon for having arrested them, or will propose to award them damages for having disturbed them in their little operations. Latterly, one of these individuals, entered by broad daylight, a house that was inhabited, and nearly demolished the resident whom he found there. He had still him, as one of our friends did his best to do so. On the following day, when judgment was passed, and every one expected a severe condemnation, judge of the general assembly of Supreme Court Civil cases, which have of course no possible interest for the public, and which, more especially, the public are not required to know anything at all about. It is gratifying to see this plan being inaugurated. It has been adopted with partial success on two mail days quite recently, and a third experiment is to be tried next Wednesday; and in Admiralty having been postponed yesterday, after the formal process of opening the Court on a Supreme Court day. It seems that the rules of the Court are rational, but that, while the Court is formally rational in abiding by the letter of its rules, it is informally irrational in evading the spirit of the same. But in all seriousness, did it occur to the authorities at the Court when postponing the above named cases, that they were flouting the basest of all base days in Hongkong.

MURDER OF A SHIP CAPTAIN.

(Pioneer Mail.)

The ship Fair Rosalind, Captain Symonds, which left Rangoon for Europe early in this month, has had to put back under peculiarly sad circumstances. It seems that, one day, the captain having called to the steward to come or send him about receiving any answer, left the cook and was heard rating the man for his inattention. A short while after, however, the chief officer happening to pass the steward's cabin, found the steward and the captain struggling. He at once separated them, when suddenly the steward pulled out a knife and stabbed the captain to the heart. The Fair Wind at once put back to the river, and last Sunday night Captain Symonds was buried in Rangoon. The murderer is now in gaol.

CHRISTIAN CHARITY.

The Manchester Examiner publishes, on the authority of Mr. Henry Knowles, of Partington, Yorkshire, the following account of the death of a colored soldier in the Primitive Methodist superintendent of the Partington Circuit at Malahan, by a clergyman resident in the neighbourhood:—

The minister, as was his custom, was paying pastoral visits to the sick and others in the neighbourhood, when a parson rode up on horseback, and stopped directly opposite the house into which the minister had entered, and began to call out at the top of his voice, "Turn him out! turn that fellow out! what does he want here?" The minister, observing the parson through the window, whom he took for a farmer, said to the mistress of the house, "Does that gentleman want your husband?" (who was returned from his daily employ). She went to the door to ask the clergyman what he wanted, when he angrily replied, "Turn that fellow out! What does he want there?" The woman returned, and said to the minister, "He wants you, sir." The minister inquired who the gentleman was, and was told, "It is our clergyman." The minister, not conceiving what he could want with him, except it was to ask him what he thought of the sick person whom he had visited in the village, of whom the doctor had given very little hope of his recovery, went to the door, when the clergyman, in a very angry tone said, "What do you want here? You have no business here! You'll get away at once, you have no authority here! What authority have you to come here?" The minister replied, "But the same authority which allows you to be here, legal authority." "You have no authority," said the clergyman. "You are a blackguard parson and a Dissenter; you are a devil in sheep's clothing; you are going about deceiving the people by wearing a black coat; you have no right to wear a black coat." The minister said he did not know of any law to forbid him wearing a black coat so long as he paid for it, which he always had done. The clergyman still insisted "You have no right to wear a black coat. You are a blackguard; you are a devil in sheep's clothing; and you know that what I am telling you is the truth. You have no authority to come here. The soil is not yours." "No," replied the minister, "nor is it yours." "It is Sir Clifford Constable's," replied the clergyman, "and he won't have you coming here; and he will use means to keep you and all such like away." The minister, believing that Sir Clifford was not so illiberal, said that Sir Clifford had got more sense than to attempt any such thing; to which the clergyman scornfully replied, "Nonsense! You are a blackguard; you are a devil." The minister, finding there was not any chance of getting either cause or reason from the clergyman, turned away and left him. It was about half-past six o'clock in the evening. Several labouring men were working in their gardens, and heard all the clergyman's side on the occasion. The minister was afterwards told that the clergyman said he only regretted that he did not dismount and give him (the minister) a downright good flogging with his whip across his shoulders.

The late stringent economy which Sir R. Temple has forced upon Lord Mayo, has produced one good result. We can't afford to pay high for tiger's heads; and a Captain Rodgers, to save the people from being devoured, has invented a cheap tiger-trap, of which an "old musket" and a "few yards of string" are the only ingredients. We hope Lord Mayo will not think it necessary to countermand these simple requisites—tigers are expensive, and muskets cheap; and the Stationery Department, if there is any department in India that is not stationary, might supply the string.—Asiatic.

ITALIAN AFFAIRS.

FLORENCE, May 21st.

Three Italian war ships have arrived at Capreu, Government fearing the formation of fresh bands.

The Minister of Public Works replying to to Signor Arivitzo, declared that Government were actively engaged in the adoption of the Brindisi route for the transmission of the Indian Mails.

LONDON, 20th May.

The American authorities still refuse to allow the Canadian Red River Expedition to cross the Saint Mary's Canal.

PARIS, 21st May.

The writers of the Reveil and Rappel have been condemned to three months' imprisonment, and a fine of 1,000.

The Spanish Ministry have resolved to confer Royal attributes on Serrano.

The speech of the Emperor Napoleon at the reception of the report Plebiscitum, thanks the nation, and says the object of the Plebiscitum was to ratify the constitutional forms of the Empire. The Emperor will not deviate from a liberal policy, but enforce respect to the national will.

LONDON, 21st May.

In the House of Commons last night, Mr. Gladstone said that the correspondence relative to the Marathon affair had not yet been completed. Despatches had been received explaining satisfactorily that secret relations had apparently existed between the Brigands and persons of rank in Athens. Several weeks must elapse, however, before Government could decide upon its policy.

A LIVELY VIEW OF A DULL SUBJECT.

"A Catholic," having on his mind the motion of Mr. Newdegate, retorts that the appointment of an inspector of parsonages would elicit a general howl of indignation. "A Surrey Rector," in a letter to the Times, ventures to disabuse the mind of "A Catholic" on the subject. He says that Mergueron have already been favoured with a taste of the annoyance, and it is not very nauseous. The annual visit of Her Majesty's Inspector of Schools is ever regarded with pleasurable anticipations. The "domestic mysteries," too, he thinks, might recommend the appointment. There is, he says, the great gulf fixed between the upper and lower regions which should be bridged over. For instance, the work of the valuable old domestic servant, from which our unaided efforts will never set us free, the perpetual mottos of the juvenile members of our establishment which escapes the attention of the most observant, the dust and circumstances of the various fractures of our household goods, the assignment of work, and adjustment of wages, the kitchen visitors and scullery parasites, the secret understandings which convert every domestic establishment into a double empire, and too often a house divided against itself. Might not, he asks, the great cook question alone justify the appointment of a committee of inquiry? It has, he observes, baffled every inquiry based upon the ordinary understanding of the law of supply and demand. Might it not be transferred to the regions of office to run from Maine, to Milford, England, is not idle. It agents have been seeking subsidies from Australia and New Zealand, at the rate of $250,000 per annum from Sydney, $150,000 from Queensland and $200,000 from New Zealand. But the colonists are cautious, and want to see signs of vitality in the line before contracting to pay money. We are informed that the Company will start a fortnightly steamer from England in about a month. One of our oldest mercantile houses has the agency in this city. The boats to be used on the Pacific side are Clyde-built, of 2,000 tons burthen, and 300 horse power. Australian Commission will be carried for $300.

It will be seen that while there is an active rivalry for the Australian business and subsidies, there is yet no positive evidence that relatives of the above have been established under circumstances warranting confident expectations of permanency. Congress may still secure this new and promising field of enterprise to an American company and American ships, by passing the postponed mail contracting bill which authorizes the Postmaster General to contract for a monthly steam mail service between San Francisco and Sydney, or Melbourne, for a subsidy of $500,000 per annum. If this bill passes, a company of which W. H. Webb is the leading spirit, with an agency already established in this city, will apply for the contract, and if it is obtained, Webb will put some of the finest steamers of his late Panama opposition on the route and construct new ones. Under such an arrangement the public would have every guarantee for a first class regular and permanent line, like that between this port and China.

THE "HORRIBLE TYRANNY" IN NEW YORK.

The Anti Fell Tenar says:—The whirligig of time brings about its revenges. In 1776 the people of this country declared themselves free and overthrew their masters; and the masters have retaliated by bestowing upon the people the title of their servants. We rebelled 100 years ago against the powers above us, and tilings looked as if the close of the century would witness a new rebellion against the powers below. That a new and horrible tyranny has grown up in American society cannot be denied. Every year our domestics demand more money, do less work, insist on greater privileges, desire without concealment a greater number of household gods, solace themselves with more receptions and symposia at our unwilling expense, indulge in a greater number of amatory affairs under our very noses, copy more fashionably the costumes, and, so far as they can, the manners and habits of our wives and daughters, and to conclude, eat our taste, purse, and comfort more supremely as sought. If presently they throw off all disguise, march from the kitchen up to the drawing-room, and proceed deliberately to kick us downstairs, we need scarcely be surprised. It will be in the natural consequence of things. Attacks on the person naturally follow the unpunished spoliation of property. The destruction of households, like that of States, is invariably preceded by the seizure of its outlying effects; and the parallel is sustained by a pervasive insolence of tone that constantly overleaps the barrier of conventional forms. Plainly, if the much-talked of alternative in the struggle for life—to devour or be devoured—is unavailable as between ourselves and ourselves, the moment is not far off when we must determine which it shall be. The same grievance is bitterly complained of in England of late, but we believe in no country are household servants so given over to waste, sloth, exaction, and finery, as in the United States to-day. They do pretty much what they please, and ask pretty much what they please for doing it. They deafen our ears with their hideous din, pillage our larder, smash our crockery, burn down our houses—do almost anything, in short, without fear of recompense or penalty. They blaze on our avenues in peacock finery. They riot in creamy self-assertion, and, like the great American Homer of the period, declare that what they assume we shall assume. They are at once unclean and gaudy, a dazzle to the eye and an offence to the nose, and they afford a perennial example of the effect that a mistaken conception of the dogma of universal equality may exert on the minor morals of society. Let us thankfully admit that there are such beings as good servants—patient, modest, industrious, self-respecting, and so respecting others, but, alas! there are few and far between. The leaven is all too little to affect the whole lump. On the contrary, the lump is vitiating the leaven. If the energy that is at present expended upon visionary theories of progress and reform were directed to the solution of this problem of domestic service, practical ends may be reached which are at present despaired of. Organisation might as well be formed to protect society from the mischief and imposition of bad servants as to protect labour from the unjust usurpation of capital. No good domestic would suffer from such bodies, and the other sort have had full swing long enough.

The speech of the Emperor Napoleon at the reception of the report Plebiscitum, thanks the nation, and says the object of

…t Athens, who had every opportunity of knowing what official people at Athens could tell concerning the safety of the roads. Now, how did this confidence arise? Undoubtedly from the representations and assurance of the Greek authorities. It is stated positively, that the expedition to Marathon was undertaken with the full knowledge and consent of the Government. An escort insufficient to protect the travellers against an armed band was provided, but it seems to have been intimated that even this precaution was unnecessary. We may take it as proved that a fortnight since the Greek Government believed, or pretended to believe, that brigandage was extinct in Attica, and that there was no danger in a party which travelled under the protection of four gendarmes.

We believe this instance will prove to be a great political event. It has filled up the cup of Greek misgovernment. It has exhausted the patience of Europe. At this moment it would be useless to talk of Greek regeneration or Greek advancement; no one would listen to the advocates of a nation whose soil is infested always and everywhere with unpunished crime, and whose historic cities are almost as inaccessible to the intelligent traveller as the cities of Tartary. We have no hesitation in saying that the time has come when this scandalous misgovernment should be brought to an end. The three Protecting Powers did not intend to create within the limits of Europe a petty state which should be a disgrace to themselves and to civilization. But what else can Greece be said not to be? These are few of its friends who will deny that its advancement must depend on the control which statesmen wiser than its own rulers exercise over it. Safety of life and property at least must be assured if the bubbage of the Greek Powers is not to be a mockery. Foreigners on their legitimate business must not be captured and murdered in a country which enjoys our protection. If its rulers are powerless, then authority must be exerted by other hands. In 1824 Athens was occupied by a French and British force to check the warlike propensities of the Court, and we do not fear to say that a similar step would be equally justifiable now. We spent nine millions upon an expedition to Abyssinia, undertaken as less provocation. We should have no such difficulties as awaited us if we chose to encounter in Greece. Three or four regiments, under an efficient commander, such as our Indian army or the French army of Algeria reap, would make the tracks of Attica as the high roads of England before many months were over.

AUSTRALIAN STEAM-SHIP LINES.

We Bulletin on good authority that the starting of the steamship City of Adelaide, from Sydney for San Francisco, is an experimental bit of enterprise on the part of H. H. Hall, United States Consul at Sydney, whose name was familiar at one time in this city from its connection with certain fictitious contracts for supplying laborers to the Pacific Railroad. Hall runs a line of small vessels here, and the contracts alluded to enabled him to get passengers, if the passengers did not always get work. He has formed a company with a capital of only $25,000, which has chartered two of the Australian Steam Navigation Company's boats, to connect with the Sandwich Island steamer. The Postmaster-General of New Zealand has guaranteed the charterer, and has signed a contract to pay for the carriage of the mails from Australia until a regular line is established. Hall telegraphs to London, via China and India, that the City of Adelaide sailed with a number of passengers on the 17th of March, and it is doubtless true that she did so.

Meanwhile, the Atlantic and Pacific Mail Steam-ship Company, proposing to run a line of steamers from Sydney to Auckland, and thence to San Francisco by way of Honolulu, connecting by way of the Pacific Railroad with a line of Atlantic steamers to run from Portland, Maine, to Milford, England, is not idle. Its agents have been seeking subsidies from Australia and New Zealand, at the rate of $250,000 per annum from Sydney, $150,000 from Queensland and $200,000 from New Zealand. But the colonists are cautious, and want to see signs of stability in the line before contracting to pay money. We are informed that the Company will start the pioneer boat from England in about a month. One of our oldest mercantile houses has the agency in this city. The boats to be used on the Pacific side are those employed on the old Panama line from Australia. Passengers will be carried for $300.

It will be seen that while there is an active rivalry for Australian business and subsidies, there is yet no positive evidence that either of the above lines is established under circumstances warranting confident expectations of permanence. Congress may still secure this new and promising field of enterprise to an American company and American ships, by promptly passing the pending bill which authorizes the Postmaster-General to contract for a monthly ocean mail service between San Francisco and Sydney, or Melbourne, for a subsidy of $500,000 per annum. If this bill passes, a company of which W. H. Webb is the leading spirit, with an agency already established in this city, will apply for the contract, and if it is obtained, Webb will put some of the fine steamers of his late Panama opposition on the route and construct new ones. A LIVELY VIEW OF A DULL SUBJECT.

"A Catholic," having on his mind the motion of Mr. Newdegate, rebuts that the appointment of an inspector of nunneries would elicit a general howl of indignation. "A Survey Review," in a letter to the Times, ventures to disabuse the mind of "A Catholic" on the subject. He says that clergymen have already been favoured with a taste of the annoyance, and it is not very nauseous. The annual visit of Her Majesty's Inspector of Schools is even regarded with pleasurable anticipations. The "domestic mysteries," too, he thinks, might recommend the appointment. There is, he says, the great gulf fixed between the upper and lower regions which should be bridged over. For instance, the tyranny of the valuable old domestic servant, from which our humbler efforts will never set us free, the perpetual caution of the juvenile members of our establishment which escapes the attraction of the most indulgent rule, the date and circumstances of the various fractures of our household goods, the assignment of work, and adjustment of wages, the kitchen visitors and scullery perquisites, the secret understandings which convert every domestic establishment into a double empire, and too often a house divided against itself. Might not, he asks, the great cook question, alone justify the appointment of a committee of inspection? It has, he observes, baffled every inquiry based upon the ordinary understanding of the law of supply and demand. Might it not be transferred to the regions of official investigation. If "A Catholic" is appointed, "A Survey Reviser" promises him free access to his house and confidential communication with any of the inmates, besides ten minutes' conversation on the subject of rates and taxes.

SINGULAR CHARGE.

A new chapter in the mysteries of London has been opened to the public at Bow-street Police-court. Two "ladies" and two gentlemen, the occupants of a box at the Strand Theatre, on Thursday evening, the 28th April, attracted the attention of the police. The "ladies," whose names appear to be Boulton and Park, in fashionable "full dress" attire—the one crimson silk, and the other seven satin—were smiling and nodding to gentlemen, and looking the parts they had assumed to such perfection that no one would have suspected that they were of the other sex. On leaving the theatre three of them were apprehended and conveyed to the station, the fourth making good his escape. On being brought before Mr. Flowor, at Bow-street, it appeared that the two "ladies" were known to the police for a year past as haunting certain streets, as well as the casinos, and, from the fact that a score or more of photographs of one of them in female attire bore the imprint of artists in various parts of England, it is inferred that the "ladies" had been on a provincial tour. They were remanded, and bail refused. The perfect completeness of Boulton and Park's feminine get-up may be understood from the fact that when the box-keeper at one of the theatres was asked by one of the officers whether he was aware who it was he had in the private box—the accused persons had just entered—he coolly replied, "Of course I do; one of them is the Duchess of Manchester." This was Boulton, who really makes up into a tall and attractive looking female, though bearing no resemblance to the Duchess. Park is of shorter build, and sterner features, but he also makes up capitally. The habits of these young men were not economical. It is known that within a few days they have filled private boxes at the Standard and the Surrey Theatres, and whilst being denuded of their feminine habiliments at the House of Detention, the voucher for a pit box at the Royal Italian Opera, in Covent Garden, dropped from the folds of Boulton's elaborate costume. It is more than suspected that there are others besides those in custody who have for some time past been engaged in personating females. In fact, it is stated that an association exists which numbers nearly thirty of those foolish young men, and that recently a ball was given at a well-known hotel in the Strand, at which twelve of the party represent ladies, and twelve of their companions the opposite sex.—London and China Express.

LEA AND PERRINS' Celebrated WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE, DECLARED BY CONNOISSEURS TO BE THE ONLY GOOD SAUCE.
CAUTION AGAINST FRAUD.
The success of this most delicious and unrivalled Condiment having caused certain dealers to apply the name of "Worcestershire Sauce" to their own inferior compounds, the Public is hereby informed that the only way to secure the genuine, is to ASK FOR LEA & PERRINS' SAUCE, and to see that their names are upon the wrapper, labels, stoppers, and bottle.
Some of the foreign markets having been supplied with a spurious Worcestershire sauce, upon the wrapper and labels of which the names of Lea and Perrins' have been forged, L. and P. give notice that they have furnished their correspondents with power of attorney to take instant proceedings against Manufacturers and Vendors of such, or any other imitations by which their right in the same is infringed.
